Description:

The initial four volumes of this ongoing series, The Collected Works of Milton H. Erickson, begins the process of making his sizable and significant literature accessible to students, researchers and educators in the behavioral sciences, and related life sciences of medicine and neuroscience.

Milton H. Erickson has been recently cited as one of the top ten most influential therapists of all time along with Sigmund Freud, Carl Jung, Carl Rogers, and Virginia Satir. Covering five decades of Erickson’s creative contributions, the volumes in Collected Works are deluxe clothbound limited editions, and feature new introductory material by the editors. In addition to presenting Erickson’s groundbreaking studies in therapeutic hypnosis, psychotherapy, and rehabilitation, these volumes reveal his use of therapeutic humor, metaphor and story telling in the creation of Brief Therapy, Cognitive-Behavioral Therapy, Family Therapy, and Neuro-linguistic Programming (NLP). Some of this material has not appeared in print for over 40 years.

Four volumes will be published each year until 2010 (a total of 16 volumes in this initial portion of the series) with additional volumes made available thereafter as materials from the Erickson Foundation Archives are assembled and edited into thematic collections.
